OK, WHAT IS SEO? I HEARD IT'S LIKE VOODOO.

Search Engine Optimization is NOT "tricking Google".

That's a lot of PhD's to trick.

Search Engine Optimization is NOT "content farming".

14 slightly different articles on "How To Boil An Egg" is not a long-term content strategy.

It's not buying links. Hiding text. Repeating keywords 5 times.

SEO is a continuous process of educating your team and ensuring your best content is quickly crawled, indexed, and shared to increase user engagement.

DON'T SLEEP ON SEARCH!

RIGHT, BUT WHAT ABOUT "THE ALGORITHM"?

"In 2011, the search team conducted 58,000 experiments on search and made 530 tweaks to how search works. Google says it has found more than 30 trillion unique URLs on the Web, crawls 20 billion sites a day and processes 100 billion searches every month."

Amit Singhal
Head of Google's Core Ranking Team

Google

You WILL go insane trying to reverse engineer this.

Successful SEO strategies DO NOT chase mythical algorithms.

A successful, defensible SEO strategy understands the evolution of search and continually educates a company and influences the product roadmap.

HOW CAN DATA HELP MY SEO?

Keyword	Global Monthly Searches
[nfl]	4,090,000
[national football league]	8,100

The marketplace is searching for professional football content as [NFL] instead of [National Football League].

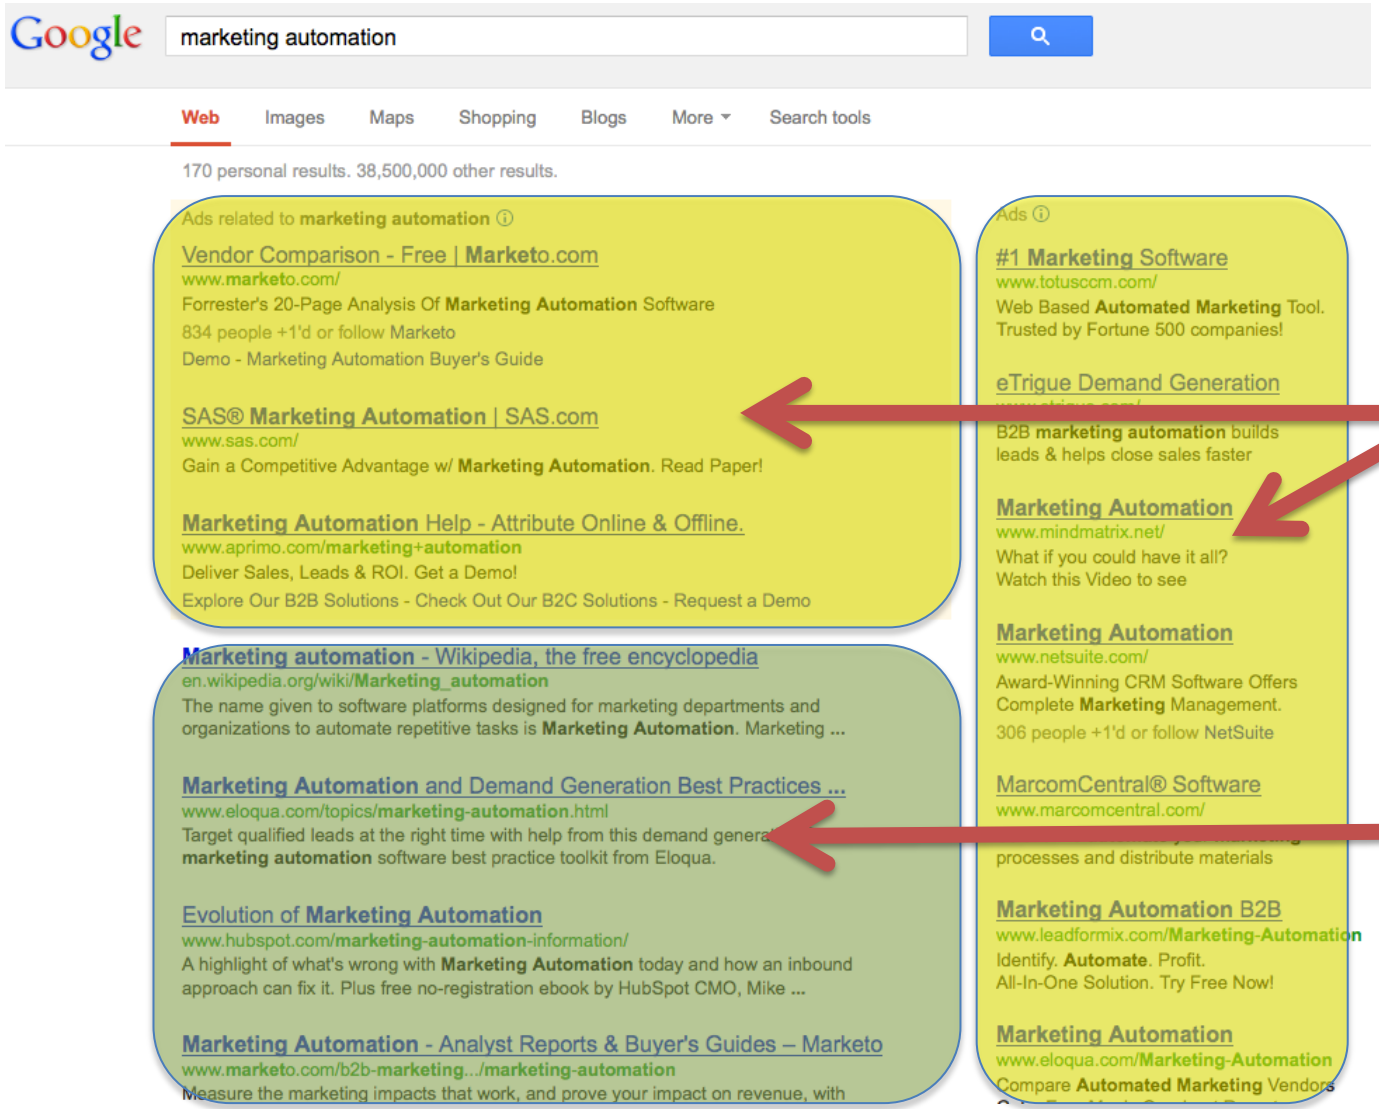

Seasonality or event driven context is essential to understanding when your users are active.

I SPEND A LOT ON SOCIAL. DOES IT HELP/HURT MY SEO?

Search and Social Media are ABSOLUTELY intertwined.

While not as powerful as their core web signals (links), social signals are growing in importance in search algorithms.

By DanZarrella of HubSpot

The more a piece of content is shared socially, the more links it is likely to generate. Those social mentions and backlinks equate to more SEO horsepower.
